We have just got a fox red Labrador puppy.

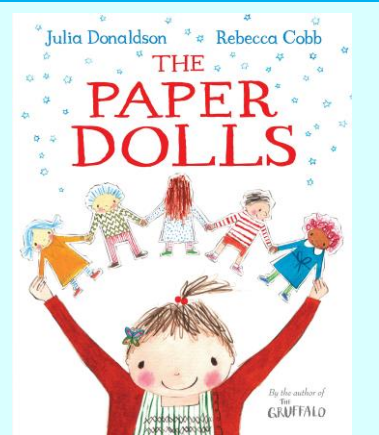

She is called Poppy.

She is gorgeous, but quite a handful!

I am a chartered psychologist.

I am very interested in how knowledge from psychology, about both learning and wellbeing, is being put into action in schools.

I love reading to my four-year-old, especially Julia Donaldson books.

My current personal favourite is 'The Paper Dolls', I love the little girl's imagination and the message about childhood memories.

My favourite food is afternoon tea. A large pot of English Breakfast tea, with a plate of warm scones, strawberry jam and clotted cream (with jam on first!).

My doctoral research was in young children's mathematics development and I spent several years collecting data in Oxfordshire primary schools.

Prior to becoming a secondary school teacher (in Psychology and Science) and then being a Deputy Head, I conducted research and lectured in Psychology and Psychiatry.
